Fall 2020

Building C

Course Description

This course emphasizes building strong observational drawing skills based with traditional techniques. A wide array of media and concepts will be explored using materials such as graphite, charcoal, conte and ink to hone perceptual drawing skills. Drawing 1 is appropriate for beginners and those with modest experience.

Course Learning Objectives

By the end of this course, students will be able to

- Demonstrate how to draw perceptually with great skill
- Solve visual problems utilizing form and content as analytical tools
- Create well composed and innovative drawings
- Clearly understand the principles of line, value, shape and perspective
- Confidently use drawing vocabulary to analyze art

Expectations

This class is a “maker-class” where we learn by doing, however each concept will be introduced with a slide show of art historical, contemporary and student examples paired with technical demonstration. At the end of each concept we will critique student work and completed projects will be graded as well as some in-class short assignments. This is an energetic, engaged learning environment where students are encouraged to take risks and challenge their understanding of drawing.

Online Etiquette

Video cameras must be on at all times. Name must appear on your zoom screen. Please don't eat on screen or lay in bed while attending class. We will be drawing and critiquing art work during our class sessions. You will be expected to critique your peers' work on our class blog site and will be working in smaller “break out” groups on zoom where participation is mandatory.

Lab Fee: Enrolling in this course requires the payment of a $100 Studio Lab Fee to be charged through the Bursar. This fee will be used to supply the student with most of the materials required to complete the course. Students will be expected to purchase additional materials as needed based on their individual studio projects.

Even when you utilize "copy-free" work from Wikimedia Commons, there are rules for how the author is to be credited. See the Library Tutorials for Research Success.

Attendance / Grading / Cell Phone Policy

Punctuality and attendance is mandatory for each class. New concepts will be introduced daily, as well as discussions and demonstrations that cannot be made up. More than three unexcused absences will result in a grade drop and a Section 3 report will be issued. Three unexcused tardies is considered an absence. A doctor's, deans or judge letter must accompany excused absences. Homework that is turned in late will drop a half letter for each day that it is late. It is the student's responsibility to find out missed assignments. Use of phones for texting and calls is strictly prohibited during class time. Students may listen to headphones with one earbud only so that you can listen to class instructions.

Evaluation Criteria

- Attendance 25%
- Completion & quality of artwork 55%

- Critique Skills / Participation 5%
- Midterm & Final Projects 15%

Homework

Students are expected to do a minimum of 3 homework hours per week. Weekly classes will begin with a critique of the homework assignment. Verbal participation during critiques is required.
